

¿What is REACH?

REACH (1907/2006 CE) is a European Union regulation that aims to ensure a high level of protection of human health and the environment against the risks posed by chemical substances. This regulation requires companies to register, assess, and, where applicable, authorise the use of the chemical substances they manufacture or import.

The European Chemicals Agency (ECHA) maintains a "Candidate List" of "Substances of Very High Concern" (SVHCs). At CENSA, our objective is to ensure that the products we market do not contain any SVHC substances at a concentration exceeding 0.1% w/w, in accordance with the REACH regulation.

How does REACH affect us?

According to the definition of EU regulation REACH 1907/2006, CENSA is a producer of «articles».

At CENSA, as a producer of «articles», we are committed to complying with REACH regulations. This means that:

1. Risk Assessment: We work to continuously verify updates to the "Candidate List" and the impact on supplied products to ensure that they do not pose a danger to the health of our customers or to the environment.
2. Information and Communication: In the event that any of the substances present exceeds 0.1% w/w in any CENSA article and is included in the «SVHC Candidate List», we provide our affected customers with clear and accessible information, as required by the REACH regulation, and will consider, in collaboration with the customer, the substitution or alternative of the raw material containing the substance.
3. Compliance of Restrictions: We ensure that our products comply with the restrictions set by REACH regulations. Our suppliers provide proof of compliance, guaranteeing that the raw materials they supply do not contain any prohibited or restricted substances used in the manufacture of our products.

Commitment to Sustainability

At CENSA, we are committed not only to REACH compliance but also to sustainability and environmental responsibility. We believe it is our responsibility to offer products that are not only high-quality but also safe for our customers and the environment.
